Amy M. Walker Presents the Impact on the Future of Healthcare Technology Management at the AAMI 2011 Conference & Expo

Columbia, MD — Amy M. Walker, HealthIT+™ Practice Director, was one of the presenters at the Association for the Advancement of Medical Instrumentation (AAMI) 2011 Conference & Expo from June 25th to the 27th, in San Antonio, TX. AAMI, a nonprofit organization founded in 1967, is a unique alliance of nearly 6,000 members from around the world united by one mission — to increase the understanding and beneficial use of medical instrumentation.

Ms. Walker's speech addressed the Impact on the Future of Healthcare Technology Management. Ms. Walker presented practical ways to demonstrate meaningful use of EHR technology by addressing the clinical engineering/biomedical technology roles of maintaining existing systems, integrating devices with networks, assuring bedside safety, and working with a staff that is reluctant to adopt new systems and processes. She focused on implementation and management strategies that help organizations stay on top of the latest EHR requirements.

The AAMI 2011 Expo Educational Sessions focus on the key issues that you and your peers are dealing with today — from wireless networks to Joint Commission compliance — as well as long-term strategic issues. For more information on the AAMI Conference go to <http://www.aami.org/ac/>.
